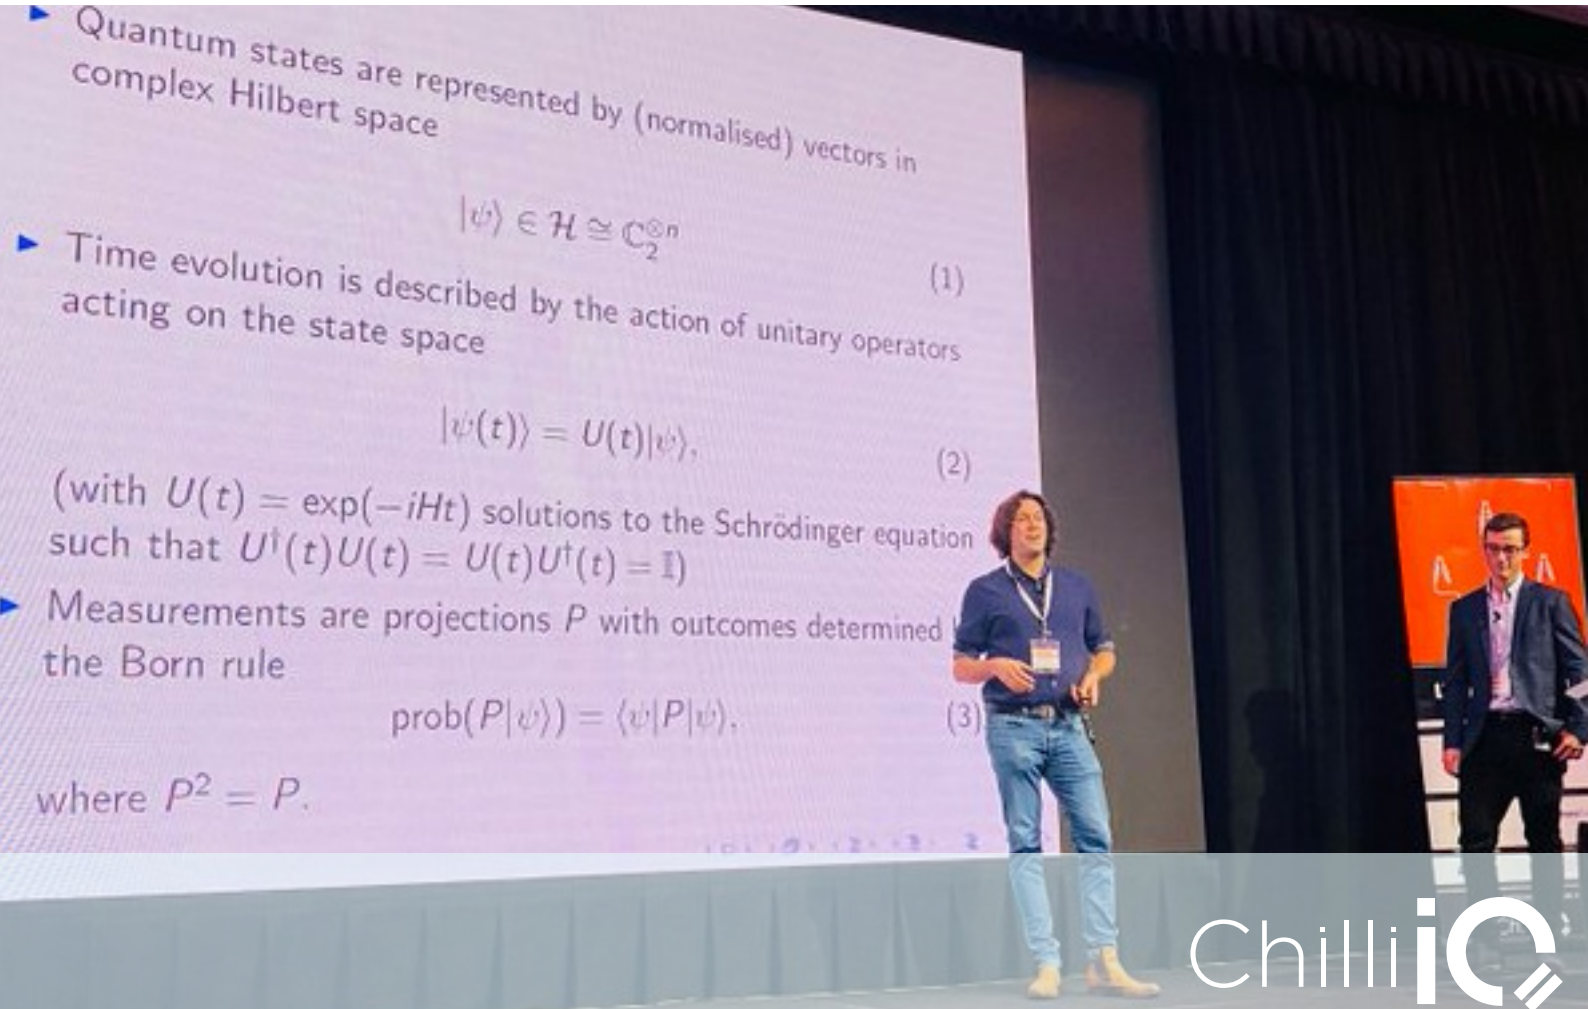
LAWTECH JUMPSTART SYDNEY

What a great way to Jumpstart into Lawtech !

The Four Seasons was abuzz with what for some was their first live conference for over a year and the Lawtech Jumpstart programme did not disappoint. The morning chair, Lionel Bird from Thomson Reuters gave an excellent overview of the progression of Lawtech since 2006 and kicked off the day. There were some exceptional presentations on both legal technology related topics and a couple a little more outer field.

Lessons learnt from 2020 and the importance of changing the recipe was presented brilliantly by Mark Andrews from Baker McKenzie. Marks's session started the day and raised the bar for the sessions that followed, he also took over Chair duties for the afternoon keeping everyone on track.
On the topic of pandemic, Hilary Goodier was unfortunately stuck in another Melbourne lockdown and Emilie Vittani from Ashurst Advance took her place on the podium delivering an exceptional session on understanding the impact legal service transformation has on the business of law. An excellent and thorough presentation that brought a lot of questions from the floor. Lyria Bennett – Moses has an incredible way of keeping a room activated and charged and her talk on what law students are learning about technology was not only interesting but also gave the delegates an opportunity to add their thoughts for some candid discussion.

Jumpstart is also an opportunity to hear about technology that is yet to come and Quantum Computing has always been a personal fascination of mine, so it was exciting to hear from some leaders in the field, Dr Ben Brown and Pablo Bonilla from Sydney Uni. They delivered an incredibly difficult subject into layman's terms which made it easier to understand how complex and intriguing subject it is. Another 'mixing it up' session was delivered by the Chief Combobulator Paul Hawkins and Melanie Farmer of Crazy Might Work, bringing their amazing skills of problem solving and scenario planning to a room of eager recipients. The divided groups came up with some incredible scenarios for their given tasks.. at times hilarious and scary!



Lawtech has always been an occasion to hear what is going on in the field of technology from our partners. We were honoured to have Thomson Reuters choose Jumpstart to launch the new 3E Cloud – the new industry standard for business management technology. Lionel Bird and David Langdon from Thomson Reuters gave excellent presentations: Lionel on how cloud technology can drive firm growth and David Langdon a more technical talk on the 3E cloud and its importance.

DocsCorp have been keen partners of Lawtech for a long time and it is always exciting to hear what they are doing next. Azan Iwasaki gave a short overview of their new move and an eye opening look at their products. One of Lawtech's long standing partners is inMailX by Digitus and Florin Boiangiu took us through a live demo of his incredible product and showed why his product is so popular for its flexibility and user friendly ease.

Lawtech has been going strong for the last 16 years thanks to the constant support from our delegates and broader partner community. Even through challenging times we are thrilled and humbled by your trust and loyalty in our event and look forward to the Lawtech Summit in September!

Thank you again for being part of the event and we look forward to seeing you again.
